Scanner Reports 7-3-15

updated: Jul 03, 2015, 7:00 AM

Roger the Scanner Guy

Fryday. Thank the Good Dog it's Fryday, the day before America's Birthday, which I believe will be 239 years or thereabouts if you count from the Bicentennial 39 Years ago. Anyone OLD enough to remember that year? The year America turned 200 Years old? Things were a lot different back then. I think our country was more together back then, not split and ripping at the seams like it is today. I was fresh out of the hospital back then, after getting my brain wiped clean from meningitis. Before that happened I was headed to Indiana University on a scholarship. After, I could not recite the ABC's or count to 10. All I really remember from the Bicentennial is that America was 200 years old, the fireworks, everyone was wearing red, white and blue. I had a small stroke a few months after leaving the hospital too. It was a real bummer because I was at work when it happened. I was trying to work because I felt worthless. I guess I was better off than a guy who was taken to the hospital with me; he died. He had no life at all. To live mine just sucked. It took me 3 years to start remembering things, but I didn't give a damn anymore. After losing that scholarship I started drinking heavy. What the hell was the use? I took jobs that required little or no thought. If I was told to do something and I could not figure out what it was or how to do it, I'd quit and walk off. I went through about 500 jobs like that throughout my life. I did not tell employers because they would not hire me. I went through so many jobs had some pretty good ones too I had to quit because I could not remember things. I still have problems as an older geezer but it's not so bad anymore getting teased, being a dummy because I know no one lives forever and I'm most likely not going to have to hear it much longer. People with their egos putting me down.

Belinda had problems too. She had such a hard time remembering things though. She could not remember and she had blackouts all the time. She was pretty smart though she did not know it because of idiots putting her down all the time. Idiots that think they are better than other people because they are not handicapped, or never suffered a brain injury or illness. I don't talk much about it because since I've been with Edhat it don't come up as much until someone starts giving me grief about my grammar, or about how I report things. My scholarship was for Journalism, but I'll never get a degree in that being a big dummy and all. The good thing about that meningitis is I came out a little physically stronger than how I went in. Maybe things are supposed to be that way because I got beat up all the time when I was a kid but after getting out of the hospital not many people messed with me. I was able to take punches and break bones other than my own easier. I sure hope that when I die I'm with my Belinda. She made everything that was wrong in this world right for me.

And Pooh Bear and Angel, our cat children too. I'd love to be with them. I don't want to leave Joey though; he's family too. This world is really starting to SUCK; people condemning others over the color of their skin and attacking them emotionally or physically. I feel certain before it's all over there will be fighting as in war somewhere within the boundaries of this country. That's that, so Happy Birthday America!!!

A couple weeks ago something occurred over on Sunset Street over on the West Side. I have a friend who lives in the area and is concerned they heard it might have been a home invasion. Does anyone know? There were a lot of police in and out of the home. One more thing. There are a lot of calls concerning people smoking marijuana in public. Some people might want to stop doing that; it's not legal and you can get busted for it.

I was in Rite Aid on Milpas on Thursday and these annoying subjects were behind me and they were flapping off at the jaws at the stuff I had in my cart. It's been 3 months since I have been able to afford my favorite shampoo, and I buy toilet paper and moist cloths because I like to be clean, my favorite soap was on sale, I love to chew Trident, even though I have no teeth. These 2 annoying drunks were complaining that I had a full cart and I should have let them cut in front of me. I did not even realize they were talking about me till the manager threw them out. I was too busy trying to breathe because I was having an anxiety attack. That had nothing to do with them it was the heat. The manager came along grabbed this guy's half gallon of vodka and threw him and his buddy out. That's why I love that store so much. There are good people working there who take care of their customers and watch out for them. That's enough outta me for now. Have a Great Weekend and 4th of July. Be Safe! Belinda and Pooh Bear willing, we will see you on Monday. PS DRINK PLENTY OF WATER, IT'S HOT OUT THERE! Later, Roger

You will be with Belinda again someday--I don't believe in heaven or hell, or all of that mumbo jumbo, but this I KNOW-we are never really separated from our loved ones, we will always come back together :-). Hang in there, Rog!

Perhaps this is my "religion", 226. The great thing about it, for me, is that I don't feel the need to torture, persecute or otherwise maim those who don't believe as I do.

Thanks for the reports, Roger. They are always good to read. Someone on a news site said our culture is now a culture of outrage. Things used to be different. People had manners.

CARES is one of the local joints that CARES for the mentally ill. Someone told me when they first opened up they had a program where they would come you your home tro make sure you took your medication. They have counseling programs I believe and are in the 2000 Block of DLV. Thanks for the comments.:)

268: Agree with all you say 150%. To me, the saddest thing of all to me is that 'they' do not know what they do not know.

A lot of tension, as always, around the holidays. In my household we are all mellow and laid back, but even so you can feel that holidays kind of mess with the natural flow of things. I'll be glad when this holiday is over.

Arguing, angry people. We could hear neighbors yelling last night (up scale neighborhood). My one friend, the one with the wicked sense of humor and the one who can hear a pin drop, said he could plainly hear the woman yelling "I'm a bitch! I'm a bitch! Bitch! Bitch! Bitch!"

Of course, that's not what she was yelling, but that was my friend's take on it. It made me laugh and the yelling then felt more comedic than stressful to hear.

Love your writing, Roger. Doesn't surprise me that you had that Journalism scholarship.
